¹Centers and institutes in the category "University Centers and Institutes" are distinguished by organizational permanence, programmatic autonomy, and an annual operating budget fiscally independent of any other academic, research, and or service unit.

²Also see Jointly-Administered Centers.

³Centers and institutes listed are jointly-administered by two or more schools of the Health Sciences (Dental Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Public Health, Medicine, and Health and Rehabilitation Sciences).

Note: The centers, institutes, laboratories, and clinics listed are University of Pittsburgh or University affiliated organizations. They are either single or multidisciplinary in scope, and are generally involved in some combination of education, research or service activities. Each center, institute, laboratory, and clinic is listed under the name of the unit with which it is associated.

Library Collections and Services

The University of Pittsburgh libraries and collections provide an abundant amount of information and services to the University's students, faculty, staff, administrators, and researchers of the University. In fiscal year 2002, the University's 29 libraries and collections have surpassed 4.6 million volumes, more than 4.4 million pieces of microforms, more than 24,700 print subscriptions, and more than 8,000 electronic journals.

Under the administration of the University Librarian, the University Library System (ULS) includes the following libraries and collections: Hillman (main), African American, Buhl (social work), East Asian, Special Collections, Government Documents, Allegheny Observatory, Archives Service Center, Center for American Music, Chemistry, Computer Science, Darlington Memorial (American history), Engineering (Bevier Library), Frick Fine Arts, Information Sciences, Katz Graduate School of Business, Langley (biological sciences, behavioral neuroscience, psychology), Mathematics, Music, Physics, and Public and International Affairs/Economics. The ULS also maintains an off-campus book storage depository at the University of Pittsburgh Applied Research Center (UPARC) while a new, larger storage facility is being built at Thomas Boulevard.

The Hillman Library is the largest library facility with seating for 1,530 users. It offers an open stack arrangement and an extensive range of library services. In addition to the main collection, which is comprised primarily of humanities and social sciences subject areas, the Hillman Library is comprised of five other libraries and collections, and houses maps, national and international newspapers, and microform facilities.

The Health Sciences Library System (HSL) provides collections and services to meet the information needs of the educational, clinical, and research programs of the Schools of Medicine, Dental Medicine, Pharmacy, Health and Rehabilitation Sciences, Nursing and the Graduate School of Public Health, as well as the hospitals of the UPMC Health System. The HSL includes Falk Library of the Health Sciences, the Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic Library and the Libraries at UPMC Shadyside. The Computer and Media Center in Falk Library is the primary health sciences facility and service point for audiovisual and microcomputer resources. HSL Online (www.hsls.pitt.edu) is the gateway to extensive electronic resources for clinical and research needs.

Other University libraries include the Barco Law Library, and those libraries located at each of the University's four regional campuses, in Johnstown, Greensburg, Titusville, and Bradford.

PITTCAT is the University of Pittsburgh's online library catalog, offering author, title, subject, and keyword access to materials to all University libraries. PITTCAT currently contains bibliographic holdings and circulation information for more than four million titles, representing most of the book and periodical collections in all University libraries. In addition, the University libraries provide access to many remote resources for University of Pittsburgh faculty, students, and staff, including: Encyclopedia Britannica, netLibrary, EBSCOhost, IAC SearchBank, CIS Compass, Web of Science, MUSE, JSTOR, Science Direct, and numerous other electronic journals. PITTCAT and other databases are available through the ULS website at www.library.pitt.edu.

Computing Services and Systems Development

Information technology has become an integral part of the academic and research mission of the University of Pittsburgh. Universal computing, networked information, online collaborations, and technology-delivered instruction are now daily experiences at the University's five campuses. Computing Services and Systems Development (CSSD) provides the infrastructure, resources, and support for these services, utilized by nearly every student, faculty, and staff member.

The University of Pittsburgh is showcased on the Internet at www.pitt.edu. CSSD maintains an information technology website at www.technology.pitt.edu.

Network and Telecommunications Environment

CSSD provides the network infrastructure and telecommunications backbone for the University community. The University's data network, PittNet, operates over a gigabit backbone which joins hundreds of local Ethernets into a large, geographically-distributed network and connects thousands of computers at all five University campuses to the Internet. High speed, reliable 100mbps Ethernet connections are the standard for University offices. The undergraduate residence halls are fully wired, with one Ethernet port per student. An extensive consulting and support program is available in the residence halls to support student computing. While off-campus, students, faculty, and staff have access to PittNet through a modem pool of nearly 800 modems.

CSSD also offers a Wireless PittNet service for students in designated public areas on the Pittsburgh Campus. Several sites are available including Hillman Library, the Cathedral of Learning Commons Room, the second floor of Posvar Hall, and the Petersen Events Center's food court/study area. Any student with a laptop computer and the required wireless network card may use the service to access PittNet and the Internet from these convenient locations. CSSD's future plans are to offer the service to faculty and staff and to add new locations on campus.

The latest computing technology offered by CSSD is the Student Web Portal at www.my.pitt.edu. The Portal provides students with a single point of web access where they can build their own web page to view commonly used information such as student services, news, weather, and e-mail.

Extensive telecommunications support is provided to more than 21,000 telephones as well as to voice mail, telephone credit card, and large-group conference call services. Telephone service to the residence halls is provided through an agreement with AT&T.

Resource Environment

The Technology Help Desk is available 24 hours a day, seven days per week, by calling 412-624-HELP (4357) or by submitting a problem report online at www.technology.pitt.edu. The Technology Help Desk provides troubleshooting and problem resolution, and answers "how to" questions on a variety of information technology issues. An online service, Knowledgebase, provides users with access to solutions and recommendations from the Technology Help Desk archives. This interactive resource helps users to identify a problem and its cause, providing detailed instructions and direction on how to resolve the issue.

Students have access to computing resources and services via six general-purpose computing labs and a productivity computing lab at the Pittsburgh Campus. Three labs are open 24 hours on weekdays to accommodate students' varied schedules. The labs offer student access to more than 600 computers including Windows, Macintosh, Linux, and Unix devices. These are equipped with more than 200 of the latest software applications and tools. Each lab features several media stations that offer CD duplication, scanning, and image processing capability. Printing services include high-speed laser and color laser print capability. In addition, more than 100 e-mail kiosks are distributed throughout the Pittsburgh Campus, providing convenient locations for students to check their e-mail or to browse the web between classes.

The University's timesharing service consists of the UNIX, VMS, and MVS environments. Software applications include the database management systems, graphical analysis programs, mathematical and statistical programs, simulation packages, and tape/file transfer utilities that are supported by these systems.

CSSD has implemented a Central Directory that is the authoritative, centralized database of all individuals affiliated with the University. It includes information about students, faculty, and staff as well as various other classifications of individuals associated with the University. A unique feature of the Central Directory is the Finding People service which allows users to conduct a search for individuals at Pitt, using their last name or e-mail username.

Support Environment

Students may take free, instructor-led training classes provided by CSSD. These classes range from beginner to advanced levels, and cover topics such as operating systems, software applications, e-mail, and the Internet. Additionally, self-paced, web-based training programs are available to the entire University community, accommodating users independent of time and place.

Computing Services and Systems Development offers a consulting and evaluation service to University departments on a contract basis. Through the contract program, systems analysts and technical professionals can be hired, from one to five days per week, to provide dedicated, high-level, on-site consulting. CSSD has also established the Expert Partners program to provide departmental technical staff with access to CSSD resources and liaison and training services. This program is designed to assist the departmental staff analyst in delivering high-quality support within his or her own department, coordinated with the overall direction of services provided by CSSD.

Students are provided an extensive array of free software applications and utilities. The Microsoft Campus Software for Students program provides Microsoft applications and operating systems to Pitt students free of charge. Students can receive software upgrades while enrolled at the University and may retain the software when they graduate. CSSD also offers mathematics, statistics, utility, and Internet software products that are either provided without charge or at a greatly reduced cost.

In addition, CSSD provides the University with an Electronic Software Distribution service that permits students, faculty, and staff to install software that is available free of charge according to the University's enterprise and site license agreements.

Institutional Advancement

The mission of the Office of Institutional Advancement is to “Inform and Involve to Inspire Investment.” To achieve this mission, Institutional Advancement seeks to inform alumni and friends about the University through personal visits, coordinated events, targeted communications, and stewardship activities; to involve alumni and friends in the life of the University; and to inspire alumni and friends to help shape the University’s future through their investment of philanthropic gifts.

In fiscal year 2002, more than one year early, the University surpassed the $500 million goal of its six-year “Discover a World of Possibilities” fund-raising campaign. A campaign extension was subsequently announced, increasing the goal to $1 billion. With $517 million in gifts and pledges at the fiscal year’s end, Pitt’s campaign is not only the most successful in the 215-year history of the University, but is also the largest in the history of southwestern Pennsylvania.

The University acquired in excess of $75 million in outright gifts from private sources in fiscal year 2002. Of this total, alumni gave $13.3 million (18 percent), corporations gave nearly $12 million (16 percent), and foundations gave $30.3 million (40 percent). Other individuals and other groups and sources gave nearly $20 million (26 percent).

Institutional Advancement’s 150 staff members also promote and mobilize volunteer activities in support of fund raising, coordinate alumni advocacy efforts, and perform other functions to support the University’s mission. One important fund-raising program is the Annual Fund, which provides potential donors with opportunities to support the University at every dollar level. From small donations to help fund day-to-day operations to large gifts to endow entire programs, the generous support of devoted Pitt alumni, friends, parents, faculty, and staff is critical to Pitt’s mission. In fiscal year 2002, more than 30,000 donors made gifts to the University’s Annual Fund, making it the most successful in its history.

Institutional Advancement’s Planned Giving department assists friends and alumni in arranging charitable gifts that are executed over an extended period of time or at some point in the future. These contributions, which may provide powerful tax benefits and sources of income to donors, can be made through gifts of life insurance, life income gifts, and a number of other donor-friendly options.

Members of the staff of Corporate and Foundation Relations act as liaisons between individuals at the University – faculty and various other departmental personnel – and individuals from local, national, and international corporations and foundations. The purpose of this effort is to connect University funding needs with the philanthropic interests of donor organizations. In addition, the University participates in a corporate matching gift program through which numerous corporations match eligible gifts made to the University by their employees.

Through the Office of Alumni Relations and the University of Pittsburgh Alumni Association, Institutional Advancement promotes mutually productive relationships between the University and its alumni, who number more than 209,000 and who reside in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, three U.S. territories, and in 160 foreign countries. Alumni Relations seeks to foster the continued connection of alumni with Pitt after graduation, because alumni are the main link between the University’s past and its future. The Alumni Association charters a growing number of Pitt Alumni clubs, works to influence government office to fund and nurture higher education, and assists the University in its efforts to attract and support high-caliber students. Additionally, Alumni Relations directs the Blue and Gold Society, an organization of out-standing student leaders who represent the University at alumni and community events.

Activities held in the Heinz Memorial Chapel are administered through Institutional Advancement. This Gothic chapel is famous for its magnificent stained glass windows. A focal point of campus life for students, faculty, staff, and alumni, the Chapel provides a place for worship services, concerts, lectures, memorial services, weddings, and individual reflection and meditation.

The Office of Special Events is another of Institutional Advancement’s departments. This office coordinates all University-wide special programs, bringing professional expertise to the many events held annually at the University.
